The Contemporary Arts Museum Houston is pleased to announce its 2011 exhibition schedule

Perspectives 173: Clifford Owens
January 7 – April 3, 2011
Opening reception: January 6, 6:30-9PM
Curated by Valerie Cassel Oliver, Senior Curator, Contemporary Arts Museum Houston

Perspectives 173: Clifford Owens marks the first solo museum exhibition for this New York-based photographer and performance artist. Often incorporating the camera in his performance works, Owens blurs the boundaries between the documentation of his performance events and the creation of photographic artwork born out of action. Additionally, Owens' performances break through the separation between artist and viewer by allowing audiences to participate in events. He also restages historical live art works by other artists, creating open-ended situations that challenge the convention of art-making. Owens' works often contain multiple components and layers based upon his interactions with the public or other artists. These interactions serve to create a context for the work that involves physically demanding actions within a controlled set of conditions. Working within these self-imposed conditions, Owens brings a new perspective to the history of performance art through the act of repeating canonical works within the very different context of current era, through the incorporation of the camera, his own body, and new audiences. Particularly in his restaging, Owens brings a newfound understanding of the canon through the recognition of black artists who have been historically lost within this dialogue.

Answers to Questions: John Wood and Paul Harrison

February 12 – April 24, 2011

Opening reception: February 11, 7-10PM

Curated by Toby Kamps, Curator of Modern and Contemporary Art, Menil Collection, Houston

Answers to Questions: John Wood and Paul Harrison is the first United States museum survey of work in video by this British artistic team. Wood and Harrison make video works that elegantly fuse advanced aesthetic research with existential comedy. The artists' spare, to-the-point works combine the actions of their own bodies and a wide range of static and kinetic props to humorously illuminate the triumphs and tribulations of making art and a life. In intentionally performing not-always-successful experiments with movement and materials, the artists employ exuberant invention, subtle slapstick, and a touch of melancholy to reveal the inspiration and perspiration behind all creative acts. Answers to Questions: John Wood and Paul Harrison is traveling to H&R Block Artspace, Kansas City Art Institute, Missouri, June - September 2011; and Frist Center for the Visual Arts, Nashville, February 2 – May 6, 2012

PUBLICATION

Answers to Questions: John Wood and Paul Harrison is accompanied by a fully illustrated catalogue featuring an essay by Toby Kamps as well as color reproductions of featured work, and the artists' biography and bibliography.

Perspectives 175: Marc Swanson: The Second Story

July 1 – October 9, 2011

Opening reception: June 30, 6:30-9PM

Curated by Bill Arning, Director, Contemporary Arts Museum Houston

Marc Swanson, Untitled (Boxer Box), 2010. Wood, chain, digital c-print, polyurethane. 24 x 36 x 8 ½ inches. Courtesy the artist

Marc Swanson constructs sculptures out of found iconographic sources, from taxidermy to tattoos. He fabricates them from culturally-loaded materials so that the resulting sculptures in both form and content reveal the conspicuous constructedness of our personas in the modern mediated world. For example, taxidermy forms relating to his own father's fantasy of an outdoorsy hunter's life—one his dad never really lived but simulated—are overlaid with the glittered mirrored surfaces associated with the demimonde of the after-midnight nightclub world the artist inhabited for many years. Swanson's allusions often refer simultaneously to both the austere, rarefied, and serious history of minimal art and the legacy of cheesy metal and self-consciously decadent glam rock bands. In stating the equal importance of both in his work, Swanson makes viewers aware of the complex negotiations between high and low culture in everyone's lives. Perspectives 175: Marc Swanson: The Second Story is curated by CAMH Director Bill Arning.

The Spectacular of Vernacular

July 23 – September 18, 2011

Opening reception: July 22, 7-10PM

Curated by Darsie Alexander, Chief Curator, Walker Art Center, Minneapolis

In an era of virtual neighborhoods and fast-paced internet communication, The Spectacular of Vernacular addresses the role of vernacular forms in the work of 20 artists who utilize craft, incorporate folklore, and revel in roadside kitsch to explore the role of culturally specific iconography in the increasingly global world of art. Originally employed as a linguistic term, vernacular is now broadly applied to categories of culture, standing in for regional, folkloric, or homemade—concepts that contemporary artists have investigated since the late 1950s as part of a deeper consideration of the relationship between art and everyday life. For those included in the exhibition, aspects of the vernacular—and often specifically American vernacular—provide a platform for narratives of home life, social ritual, and sense of place. Drawing inspiration from such diverse sources as local architecture, amateur photographers, and state fair banners, their work runs the aesthetic spectrum from sleek to homespun, underscoring the diverse manifestations of the vernacular within our lived environment and its impact on artists working today. This exhibition is organized by Walker Art Center where it will be on view January 29 – May 8, 2011.

PUBLICATION

A fully illustrated 112-page catalogue includes an essay by the exhibition curator Darsie Alexander and Andy Sturdevant, artist and curator, and a reprint of John Brinckerhoff Jackson's "Vernacular" from his seminal 1984 reader on vernacular landscapes. Also included will be a reading list, featured as an appendix, that functions as a cross-section of art criticism and cultural studies. A full plate section will highlight the works in the exhibition.

The Spectacular of Vernacular at the Walker Art Center is made possible by generous support from the Andy Warhol Foundation for the Visual Arts. Sponsorship is provided by Briggs & Morgan, PA. Media partner Mpls.St.Paul Magazine.

Donald Moffett: The Extravagant Vein

October 1, 2011 – January 8, 2012

Opening reception: September 30, 7-10PM

Curated by Valerie Cassel Oliver, Senior Curator, Contemporary Arts Museum Houston

The first comprehensive survey of Moffett's investigations into art history, paint, and form, Donald Moffett: The Extravagant Vein will provide viewers with insight into the breadth and range of the artist's practice over the past twenty years. As a painter, Moffett extends the traditional two-dimensional frame, converting the ordinariness of the flat plane into highly textured relief works with his signature oil paintings or into intricate illuminations by incorporating video projections onto the canvas. The subject matter of his paintings—from landscape and nature to politics and history—are poetic, provocative, and even at times humorous. An astute and thoughtful painter, Moffett knows the power of the artist to critique the world at large, and his love of the Spanish romantic painter Goya (1746-1828) and Italian painter Morandi (1890-1964), are manifested in his ability to blend the subtle with the outlandish, the image with social critique. As a founding member of Gran Fury, the artistic arm of the activist group ACT UP, Moffett has remained engaged with issues surrounding the presence of gays in historical and contemporary culture. And he is fearless in addressing issues that still resonate today, such as the rights of openly gay men and women to serve in the military (Gays in the Military, 1990-91) and the aesthetics of gay subcultures (Fleisch, 2007). Moffett is also interested in the ecstatic and its manifestation in the secular world in which we inhabit. Moffett incorporates sound and light in his work, sometimes as stand alone projects and at other times in conjunction with his paintings, creating an ambiance more reminiscent of the art and culture of the Renaissance era than of our current technological world. While this exhibition provides contemporary views on several important topics of our contemporary lives, it is, too, a meditation on the larger, timeless universal issues of love, loss, alienation, and death.

Perspectives 176: Glen Fogel: With Me... You
October 14 – December 31, 2011
Opening reception: October 13, 6:30-9PM
Organized by PARTICIPANT INC, New York

Glen Fogel will create a new room-sized video installation, shown in conjunction with a series of large-scale printed reproductions of intimate letters written to the artist by would be lovers. Perspectives 176: Glen Fogel: With Me... You continues Fogel's pairing of elements of personal history with superimpositions of the self onto found or public material. Using the photography and display style of Home Shopping Network as a starting point, Fogel embarked on a project to videotape all of the wedding rings in his family's possession. Going back to his great grandparents' rings that have been stripped of their jewels, to the wedding rings of his parents and siblings, Fogel has documented the process of requesting permission through email exchanges, recorded phone calls, and kept videotape of his travels to Colorado and California to obtain the rings. The exhibition is organized by PARTICIPANT INC where it will be on view January 9 – February 20, 2011.
